DEFENDANT JOHN HANCOCK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY (U.S.A.) AND DEFENDANT JOHN HANCOCK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF NEW YORK'S
MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR CONTINUED SEALING

Defendants John Hancock Life Insurance Company (U.S.A.) and John Hancock Life Insurance Company of New York (together, “Defendants”) respectfully request that the Court maintain under seal limited passages from the Expert Report of Larry Stern (“Stern Report”) (previously attached as Exhibit N to the Declaration of John F. LaSalle in Support of Defendants’ Motion for Summary Judgment (“LaSalle Summary Judgment Declaration”)), and portions of documents which quote or paraphrase those passages. The Stern Report was originally filed in connection with Defendants’ motion for summary judgment and Davydov’s opposition to that motion, and temporarily maintained under seal in its entirety by this Court (ECF 195; Davydov ECF 85). The proposed redactions that are the subject of this motion are attached as exhibits to the Declaration of John F. LaSalle in Support of Defendants’ Motion for Continued Sealing, filed contemporaneously with this memorandum of law.

On September 14, 2022, this Court granted Defendants’ Motion to Seal (ECF 195), maintaining documents on Exhibit A under seal or in redacted form (ECF 184-1, Ex. A) and temporarily maintaining documents on Exhibit B under seal or in redacted form pending further motion (ECF 184-1, Ex. B) pursuant to the terms of the Protective Order (ECF 34).¹ Defendants included the Expert Report of Larry Stern on Exhibit B because Plaintiffs designated it confidential in its entirety, but Defendants noted in their Memorandum of Law (ECF 185, footnote 2) that “Defendants intend to seek continued confidential treatment of certain excerpts of Mr. Stern’s report and will move to seal those excerpts within the time-period² allotted under the Protective Order.” Defendants committed to “meet and confer with Plaintiffs for the purpose of determining an agreed set of redactions consistent with the legal standards for sealing and Rule 4 of the Court’s individual practice rules.” Id.

¹ See also ECF 33, Davydov v. John Hancock Life Insurance Company of New York, Case No. 18-cv-09825. References to the “Protective Order” herein refer to ECF 34 in this Case No. 19-cv-11093, though the terms of the protective order in Davydov cases are not materially different.

² “Within twenty-one (21) days after the filing of a motion for leave to file Confidential Discovery Material under seal, any party may file a motion with the Court seeking the continued sealing of the information, or certain parts of the information, originally sought to be filed under seal.” ECF 34, ¶ 11. Where there is an opposition and reply in support, this deadline is “extended to twenty-one (21) days after the date that any reply brief in further support of the original motion is due.” Id.

Having met and conferred with Plaintiffs regarding the confidentiality of the Stern Report, Defendants now move to maintain under seal certain limited portions of that report, as well as certain quotes from that Report that appear in the Expert Report of Timothy Pfeifer (previously attached as Exhibit K to the LaSalle Summary Judgment Declaration), as outlined in Exhibit 1 to the Proposed Order filed herewith.

Defendants also move to maintain under seal limited portions of Davydov’s Opposition (Davydov ECF 81-83) which this Court has provisionally held under seal pending this motion (Davydov ECF 85, Ex. A) pursuant to the terms of the Protective Order. Those portions are detailed on Exhibit 2 to the Proposed Order filed herewith, and either quote or summarize portions of the Expert Report of Larry Stern.

The redacted portions of the Expert Report of Larry Stern contain or reflect Defendants’ proprietary and confidential pricing parameters, projections, and analysis of product performance and profitability. Filed with this motion is the Declaration of Zahir Bhanji dated September 12, 2022, which explains why this type of information warrants confidential treatment. The redactions sought through this motion are identical in nature to the information that the Court has already ruled should be maintained under seal. See Exhibit A to the September 14 Sealing Order.

LEGAL STANDARD

While court records enjoy a presumption of openness to public inspection, that presumption is “rebuttable upon demonstration that suppression is essential to preserve higher values and is narrowly tailored to serve that interest.” Rule 4(A), Individual Rules of the Honorable Alvin K.

Hellerstein, S.D.N.Y. (quoting The Hartford Courant Co. v. Pellegrino, 380 F.3d 83, 96 (2d Cir. 2004)). To resolve a party's motion to keep certain "judicial documents" under seal, courts consider and balance (i) "the weight of the presumption of [public] access" against (ii) any "countervailing factors" including "the privacy interests of those resisting disclosure." Lugosch v. Pyramid Co. of Onondaga, 435 F.3d 110, 119–20 (2d Cir. 2006) (quotations omitted).

As the Second Circuit has instructed, "the weight to be given the presumption of access must be governed by the role of the material at issue in the exercise of Article III judicial power and the resultant value of such information to those monitoring the federal courts." Id. (quoting United States v. Amodeo, 71 F.3d 1044, 1048 (2d Cir. 1995)). Generally, the information at issue "will fall somewhere on a continuum from matters that directly affect an adjudication to matters that come within a court's purview solely to insure their irrelevance." Id. (quoting Amodeo, 71 F.3d at 1049). "[T]he presumption of access is less" where the "confidential information does not go to the heart of the judicial process" because it is "not central to the Court's rulings and [would] not require[] the Court to redact any portion" of its eventual ruling. Mullinix v. Mount Sinai Sch. of Med., No. 12 Civ. 8659, 2014 WL 3687217, at *21 (S.D.N.Y. July 24, 2014).

After determining the weight of the presumption of access, the court must "balance competing considerations against it," including a party's privacy interests in maintaining information under seal. Lugosch, 435 F.3d at 120 (quotations omitted). "In determining the weight to be accorded an assertion of a right of privacy, courts should . . . consider the degree to which the subject matter is traditionally considered private rather than public," as well as "the sensitivity of the information and the subject." Amodeo, 71 F.3d at 1051. "Documents falling into categories commonly sealed are those containing trade secrets, confidential research and development information, marketing plans, revenue information, pricing information, and the like." Grayson v.

Gen. Elec. Co., No. 3:13CV1799 (WWE), 2017 WL 923907, at *1, 3 (D. Conn. Mar. 7, 2017) (quotations omitted) (granting motion to seal as to “the documents or information relevant to pricing, sales and profit”); see also Tyson Foods, Inc. v. Keystone Foods Holdings, Ltd., No. 1:19-CV-010125 (ALC), 2020 WL 5819864, at *2 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 30, 2020) (Carter, J.) (granting sealing over sensitive business information); Hypnotic Hats, Ltd. v. Wintermantel Enters., LLC, 335 F.Supp.3d 566, 600 (S.D.N.Y. 2018). This Court has explained that “[n]on-public data of this nature is sensitive and potentially damaging if shared with competitors.” Tyson Foods, Inc., 2020 WL 5819864, at *2 (quotations omitted).

ARGUMENT

The Confidential Information identified in Exhibits 1 and 2 to the Proposed Order should remain under seal because the strong privacy interest Defendants have in preventing disclosure of their proprietary, competitively sensitive information—which includes information related to the pricing, modeling, design, and profitability of their inforce life insurance policies—outweighs the weak presumption of public access to such information. This information is identical in nature to the information that the Court has already ruled may be maintained under seal.

I. The Confidential Information Is Commercially Sensitive and Disclosure Would Materially Injure Defendants’ Business.

“Foremost among the competing concerns that a court weighing disclosure must consider is ‘the privacy interest of the person resisting disclosure.’” Mirlis v. Greer, 952 F.3d 51, 61 (2d Cir. 2020) (quoting Amodeo, 71 F.3d at 1050). In evaluating an asserted privacy interest by a party seeking to seal confidential information, courts consider both (i) “the degree to which the subject matter is traditionally considered private rather than public” and (ii) the “nature and degree of injury” that may flow from disclosure. Amodeo, 71 F.3d at 1051. “Commercial competitors seeking an advantage over rivals need not be indulged in the name of monitoring the courts.” Id.

For that reason, “courts will commonly grant a company’s request for sealing of ‘proprietary business information, such as internal analyses’” or “‘business strategies’” when “disclosure of that information could ‘provide competitors with an unearned advantage.’” W.J. Deutsch & Sons Ltd. v. Diego Zamora, S.A., No. 1:21-CV-11003-LTS, 2022 WL 890184, at *2 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 25, 2022) (Swain, J.) (quoting Sec. & Exch. Comm’n v. Telegram Grp. Inc., No. 19-CV-9439 (PKC), 2020 WL 3264264, at *3 (S.D.N.Y. June 17, 2020)); see also Kewazinga Corp. v. Microsoft Corp., No. 1:18-CV-4500-GHW, 2021 WL 1222122, at *3 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 31, 2021) (“Courts commonly find that documents that contain . . . confidential research and development information, marketing plans, revenue information, pricing information, and the like satisfy the sealing standard.”).

As described in the Declaration of Zahir Bhanji dated September 12, 2022 filed herewith, the Confidential Information that Defendants ask the Court to keep under seal here is precisely the type of commercially sensitive, proprietary business information that is “traditionally considered private rather than public.” See, e.g., W.J. Deutsch & Sons Ltd., 2022 WL 890184, at *3 (sealing documents related to “pricing lists” and “marketing strategies”); Grayson, 2017 WL 923907, at *3 (sealing “information relevant to pricing, sales and profit”). The Confidential Information consists of non-public, commercially sensitive, and proprietary information that goes to the very heart of John Hancock’s business, including the proprietary actuarial assumptions used in the pricing and valuation of John Hancock’s business. Bhanji Decl. ¶ 3. This information is highly sensitive. Life insurance companies compete with one another in large part through the manner in which they structure and price their products. If John Hancock’s competitors were able to obtain detailed information concerning John Hancock’s proprietary actuarial assumptions and pricing methodologies, which it expends significant time and resources to develop, those competitors could use that information to price their competing life insurance products in a manner that would undercut John Hancock’s competitive position and lure away prospective customers. Id. ¶ 4. Disclosure could also substantially impair John Hancock’s bargaining position when negotiating reinsurance coverage with its reinsurers, making any reinsurance obtained by John Hancock—and John Hancock’s reinsured products—more expensive relative to competitors for which reinsurers do not have access to similar information. Id. These types of competitive disadvantages weigh heavily in favor of sealing. See Amodeo, 71 F.3d at 1051; W.J. Deutsch & Sons Ltd., 2022 WL 890184, at *2; Grayson, 2017 WL 923907, at *3; Kewazinga Corp., 2021 WL 1222122, at *3.

II. Defendants’ Proposed Redactions Are Narrowly Tailored.

Defendants’ proposed redactions, as listed on Exhibits 1 and 2 to the Proposed Order, are narrowly tailored to protect disclosure of sensitive Confidential Information, and will not prevent the public from being able to fully appreciate the parties’ arguments from the balance of the materials on the docket. Defendants propose only targeted redactions to the Stern Report. All other redactions proposed herein are quotes or paraphrases therefrom. Redacting the specific Confidential Information that Defendants seek to protect does not impede the public’s understanding of Defendants’ summary judgment arguments, which remain intact in the briefs themselves. Allowing these limited redactions will, however, prevent competitors from learning information from which they could obtain an unearned competitive advantage. Bhanji Decl. ¶¶ 4-5. Defendants’ proposed redactions here do not necessitate any redactions in the Court’s decision on this motion. See Newsday LLC v. Cty. of Nassau, 730 F.3d 156, 166-67 (2d Cir. 2013) (upholding sealing based on “the degree of judicial reliance on the document in question” and whether document “would materially assist the public in understanding the issues before the district court, and in evaluating the fairness and integrity of the court’s proceedings”).

CONCLUSION

In light of the foregoing, Defendants respectfully request that the Court grant this motion to maintain documents under seal and enter the Proposed Order submitted herewith.
